

BIOGRAPHY

Sigrid Sandner graduated from the Medical University of Vienna, Austria, in 1999. Following a research fellowship in transplant immunology at Brigham and Women's Hospital - Children's Hospital Boston and Harvard Medical School from 2000 to 2003, Dr. Sandner completed her clinical training in cardiac surgery (2011) and vascular surgery (2016) at the Medical University of Vienna. Currently, Dr. Sandner is an Associate Professor of Surgery at the Medical University of Vienna and Director of the Coronary Surgery Program at the Department of Cardiac Surgery, Vienna General Hospital - Medical University of Vienna. She is also a member of the EACTS Coronary Task Force.